

There is an amazing Global Hackathon opportunity for the computer science students of Yıldız Technical University.

Def Hacks is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization that provides students with free, immersive experiences of the technological world through our international hackathons.

This June, our Def Hacks Virtual 2020 attracted 1300+ hackers from all corners of the globe, with big names in Tech speaking at our event; from Tom Preston-Werner (co-founder of GitHub) to Ge Wang (award-winning professor from Stanford). The students made excellent use of blooming technologies to solve real-world problems.

Two winning teams were awarded $1,000 in cash + $10,000 in AWS credits + other valuable perks and swags in order to support their project. Similarly, many other teams won different prizes from a prize pool of $42,000.

This November 14th-15th, we aim to bounce off our summer success with our second virtual hackathon, Def Hacks Global 2.0. Poised to bring in 5000+ high school and college students from all over the world, students will participate in workshops and receive speeches from a new set of big-name speakers like Michael Seibel (co-founder of Twitch) and Craig Newmark (founder of Craigslist).

There will be even bigger prizes this time! We hope we can provide the technology enthusiasts with this engaging experience and we look forward to hearing from the students of computer engineering department.
